Although the specific motive behind selecting the nome is unknown, there is reoson to believe thot it wos odopted from Choucer's The Conterbury Toles.

In "The Nun's Priest's Tole," o chonticleer, or rooster, outwits o stronger opponent. Not only is the chonticleer intelligent, but he possesses severol other chorocteristics embodied by Duke students. He is good looking, sexy, olthletic, smooth, determined, ond ingenius.

Thus, is the perfect nome for Duke's undergroduote yeorbook.

Over the course of the year, the janjaweed, a Sudanese government-backed military force, continued to massacre non-Arabs in Darfur, a region in western Sudan. The Duke community made many efforts to spread awareness of the crisis and contribute to the effort to end it. During Social Justice Week, a refugee from Sudan put photographs of Darfur out by the chapel and spoke about his experience. Among other events, a candlelight vigil was held, and fraternity Alpha Epsilon Pi organized a rally called Greeks United Against Genocide in Darfur.

The Bryan Center -- home ta many on-campus facilities, including the baakstore, three theaters, the lobby shap, the post affice and three popular dining optians -- has always been a hub far student life. The Bryan Center, hawever, saw reduced traffic this year. The BC walkway, which linked the Bryan Center ta the main quad an West Campus, was clased for cantructian of a 40,000-squore-faat plaza. Scheduled far completian in the summer af 2006, this plazo will serve os an autdoor gathering and perfarmance space.

November Dances

When the weather is nice, the wide open lawns of the Sarah P. Duke Gardens are ideal for having picnics and playing Frisbee, and Dukies often join toddlers from Durham in rolling down the hills. The Duke Gardens rival the Chapel as the most popular place to get married on campus, and on any given visit, there is almost always a wedding party present.

Sabrosura dancers, seniors Connie Leeper & Toshia Sidney-Anda, perform their sexy, acrobatic duet entitled, "We Like ta... MOVE IT!" to a spicy mix of salsa hits.

bus fire

On the afternaan af Wednesday, March 29th, students walking ta the West bus stap were greeted by the smell af burning rubber and the sight af a transit bus bursting into flames. Thaugh everyone at first enjoyed the spectacle caused by a mechanicol failure, freshmen become disgruntled when the bus stap was clased off and they had to walk ta catch the bus at the Raundabaut stop. Many frustrated students gave up on catching a bus because of subsequent delays in the schedule, and chase ta walk the 20 minutes back to East Compus.

duke democrats filibuster of alito

Printed on the red handbills distributed by Duke Democrats during a week-long protest of Judge Samuel Alito's nomination to the Supreme Court:

"We filibuster because we want to be on the record that collectively and as individuals we dissent. Alito's America is not our America; he will not represent us on the Supreme Court, and we see our airing of views as a personal and civic obligation for ourselves and our posterity."

gay? fine by me.

Gay? Fine By Me, a non-profit organization started at Duke in 2003, has successfully reversed the stereotype that Duke is homophobic and unwelcoming to lesbians, gays, bisexuals and transgenders.

The project was sparked after Princeton Review ranked Duke at the top of a list of schools intolerant to alternative lifestyles. A group of students raised enough money to manufacture and give away thousands of free t-shirts with "gay? fine by me" written on the front. Students and faculty alike wear the shirts around campus, and other colleges have since adapted the program.

missile

While the James B. Duke sculpture was being cleaned during the fall semester, senior Rita Bergmann and graduate student Rann Bar-On created and erected a large missile in its place to protest the war in Iraq. The two students paced Main Quad all day, passing out information about the project. According to their hand-out, the red fabric around the missile represented blood, and the taking apart of the missile at the end of the day symbolized an end to American military presence worldwide. Passersby were allowed to record their personal responses to the war and to the protest on a white sheet of paper on the pedestal.

sororities

It is rumored that due to an outdated ban against brothels, sororities cannot officially live together on campus. Despite this rumored law, approximately 40% of female undergraduates join one of the 16 sororities at Duke. Sororities are known not only for their social events, but also for their involvement in campus activities and community service. Frequently, members are also recognized for their amazing academic achievements.

Sororities partnered with other Greek chapters to participate in a number of creative initiatives. For instance, Lambda Pi Chi Sorority, Inc. distributed information pamphlets on the National Latino HIV/AIDS Prevention Day. In addition, Alpha Omicron Pi sponsored its annual dodgeball competition to fundraise for the Arthritis Foundation, Chi Omega raised almost $8000 for the Make-A-Wish Foundation through its annual Rock 'n Bowl bowling tournament, Kappa Kappa Gamma joined Kappa Alpha Order in raising over $3000 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, and Alpha Delta Pi raised over $1000 to support the Ronald McDonald House through their annual waffle breakfast. These provide just a few of the many examples in which sororities give back to the community.

fraternities & selective living houses

Fraternities and selective living groups are the social hubs for undergraduate student life. The quads in these sections are frequently alive with barbeques, parties, and even enormous pirate ships.

In addition to living together on West campus, the members of these self-selected groups participate in community service, pursue academic excellence, and provide strong alumni networks for future graduates. Each of the 21 fraternities and 12 selective living groups has its own unique characteristics and interests, ranging anywhere from arts to languages to, well, partying.

Freshmen (and sometimes sophomores) normally begin the rush process in the spring and begin living with their respective section the following fall.

east campus

For several years, only freshmen have inhabited the dorms on the dry East Campus. Although the freshmen agree that the trek to West Campus for classes is often inconvenient, they also recognize and value the community feeling that is fostered by group meals at the Marketplace.

Though most of the fun on campus happens on West, students enjoy many organized activities on East including multiple barbeques, a Midnight Breakfast during each reading period, dorm wars during first semester, and a carnival during second semester.

Dorm rivalries are manifested in the painting of dorm benches, and this year some students even went so far as to rip Blackwell's new bench to pieces twice. Dorms also competed through the Eco-Olympics, which Wilson won for the first time to beat returning champion Aycock.

Greek organizations arranged powderpuff football on East, and fraternity brothers coached as sorority sisters played against each other.

For cultural entertainment, freshmen could also attend night performances in Trinity Café and GA Dawnunder, or a cappella concerts under the Blackwell arch.

ski team

Despite being located in the mild climate of North Carolina, the Duke University Ski Team is the largest club sport at Duke. Though the members work on improving physical strength during the fall semester by playing other sports, over Winter Break they spend six days in Canada, Colorado or Wyoming to practice skiing. There, they spend the mornings being coached, the afternoons free skiing, and the nights having fun. During four or five weekends per year, the team travels to Virginia, West Virginia and other parts of North Carolina to race against other schools.

dukes and duchesses

"Dukes and Duchesses is a group of enthusiastic students who wish to share their pride for Duke with its guests. Established in 1979, we are a group of 40 committed undergraduate students who serve as student ambassadors for the president of the university. In fulfilling this role, we have many amazing opportunities to interact with university leaders and distinguished guests of the university.

Each semester we participate in a variety of different events, which include assisting the visitors in the President's box during football games, helping host the university's special events, and giving tours to community and school groups."

- Brittany Rhodes
President

"Although I am only a freshman, who was accepted to the club this year, I have already shadowed a few tours and attended events and seen the great work this club does to promote Duke as both an academic and social institution. I feel that the work of this club is essential in the aftermath of the Lacrosse Scandal; regardless of the outcome of the criminal and civil investigations, Dukes reputation has taken considerable heat over the last few weeks, and I feel that Dukes and Duchesses is one of Dukes outstanding organizations that will play an integral role in bringing the real face of Duke back to the public eye."

- Brian Fitzpatrick

engineers without borders

"At Duke, the newly established Engineers without Barders represents a bridge between the academic world of engineering and the community that the engineering discipline serves. EWB shows that engineers aren't just good at salving problem sets ar writing lab reports, but that we participate actively with our local and global community. For our local project, EWB members are collaborating with Durham Parks and Recs and From the Ground Up ta construct a playgraund catering to the needs af children with all disabilities. Internationally, EWB is partnered with the Central Buganda University in Uganda to enhance their water supply and water sanitation needs. The bottom line is that EWB truly shows passian and commitment in all their endeavars. This organizatian makes engineers proud all across campus."

- Yaqing Wen

"I went to a presentation that EWB did at the beginning of this school year and fell in love with this group. EWB had designed a water aerator that wauld rebuild the shrimp farming industry in a tsunami-devastated area af Indonesia. They had been presented with the problem af stagnant water in the ance fresh shrimp hatcheries and fram there, designed a solutian and implemented it in the village it was gaing ta be used. After seeing this presentatian I signed up right away ta be a part of EWB. I don't want to just sit in a classraam and learn abaut engineering, I want to actually use what I am learning ta help someane."

They went into the NCAAs strongly, with Tiare Fergusan, Clara Horawitz and Shannan Rawbury picking up accolades. The team went on to finish second in the NCAA championships.

Track & Field

The Men's Track and Field team had an extremely successful season. Noteworthy team members included Mark Dellavalpe and Robert Weinstein (javelin), Chris Spooner in the 1500m, and Tyler Clarke in the decathlon. In the ACC finals, Spooner posted the second fastest 1500m time, and Clarke achieved a personal record of 6,576 points, making him the 3rd best rank in Duke history.

The Women's Track and Field team also did extremely well this season. Daina Pucurs exceeded her own record for the javelin throw by 13-4 feet at the ACCs, winning her event. Laura Jones was a shining star for the team, breaking her own personal vault record and earning her first all-AA honor with a career best of 12-9.5--the second best pole vault in Duke's history. Debra Venta also "high jumped" her way to success with a Kentner Stadium record breaking jump clear of 5-10.75.

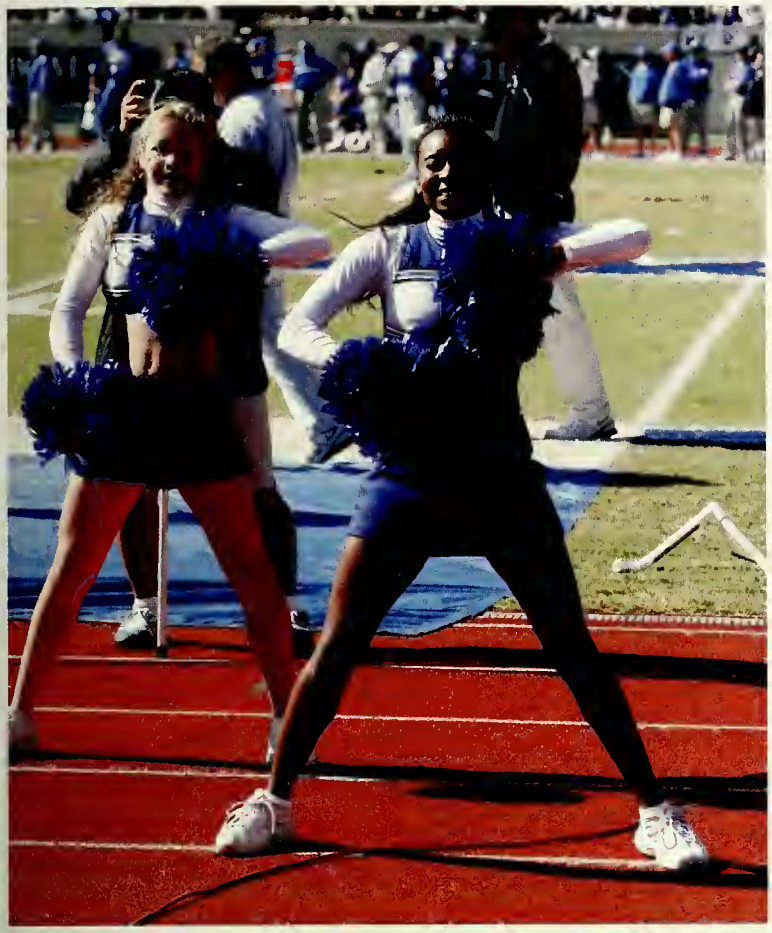
The Duke University Marching Band (DUMB) calls itself "the most dynamic bond in the ACC." Before freshmen even arrive on campus, anyone who listed a wind or percussion instrument on their application is sent a letter inviting them to participate.

Those who join the marching band may also be part of the Duke University Pep Band, which gives students access to every basketball game and provides the option of traveling to away games. Members of the band entertain the Cameron Crazies by lying on the ground of Coach K Court and allowing the crowd to surf over them.



Duke Cheerleading is divided into two squads. All freshmen begin as members of the White Squad, which cheers at women's basketball and home football games. Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors may then become members of the Blue Squad, which cheers at men's basketball games and both home and away football games.

The time commitment for Duke Cheerleading is intense: all cheerleaders must attend a preseason camp and go to rehearsals five times a week.

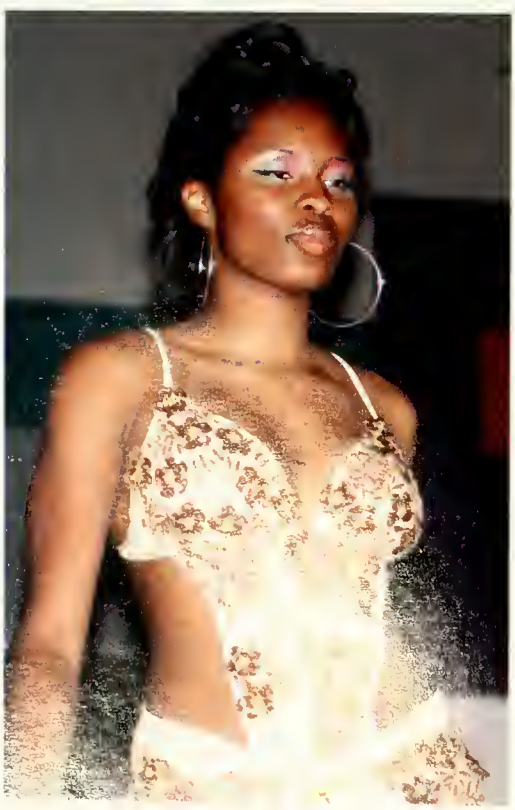
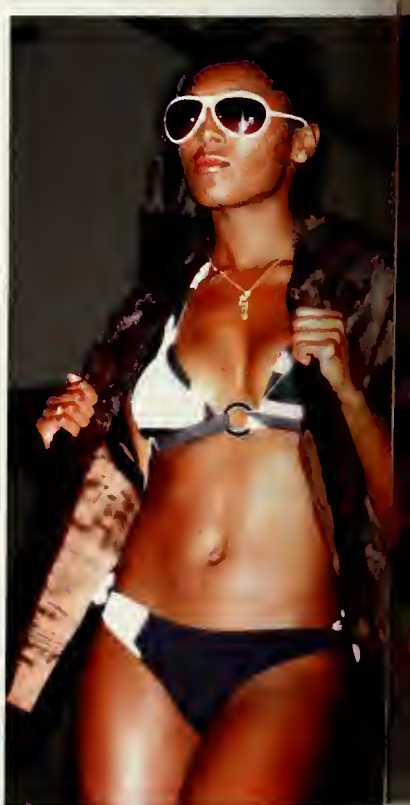
Fashion Show

Presented by Black Student Alliance

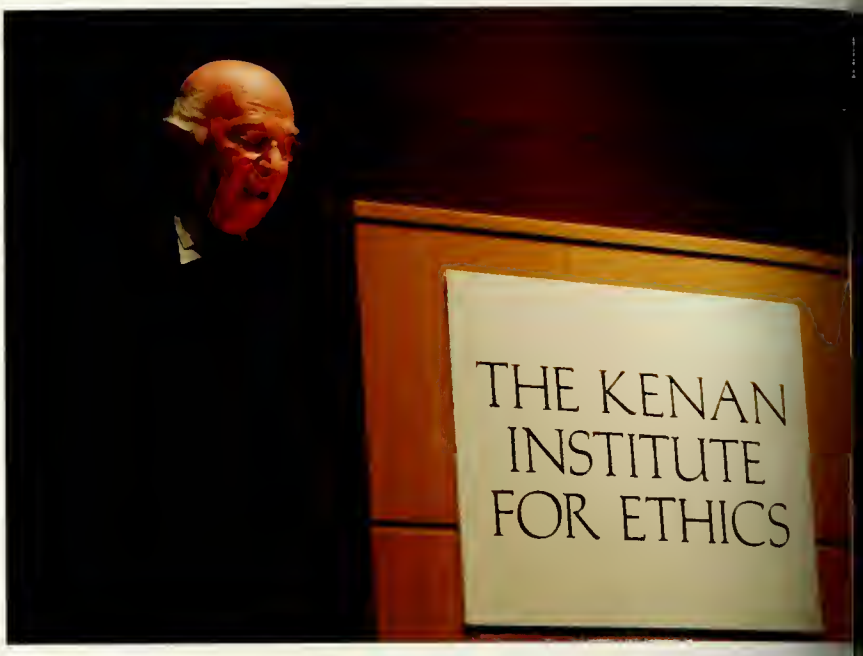
Members of the Black Student Alliance graced the catwalk in a display of the hottest pieces from designer lines like Victoria Secret and Charlotte Russe. Nearly bare bodies paraded up and down the catwalk as onlookers gazed in awe and amazement. However there was more to the show than skimpy bikinis and shirtless hunks. The fashion show was one of the annual events put on for prospective students during the Black Student Alliance Invitational Weekend in hopes of swaying them to join the Devil community. Through hard work and dedication a few hours a week, the models managed to put on a phenomenal show.

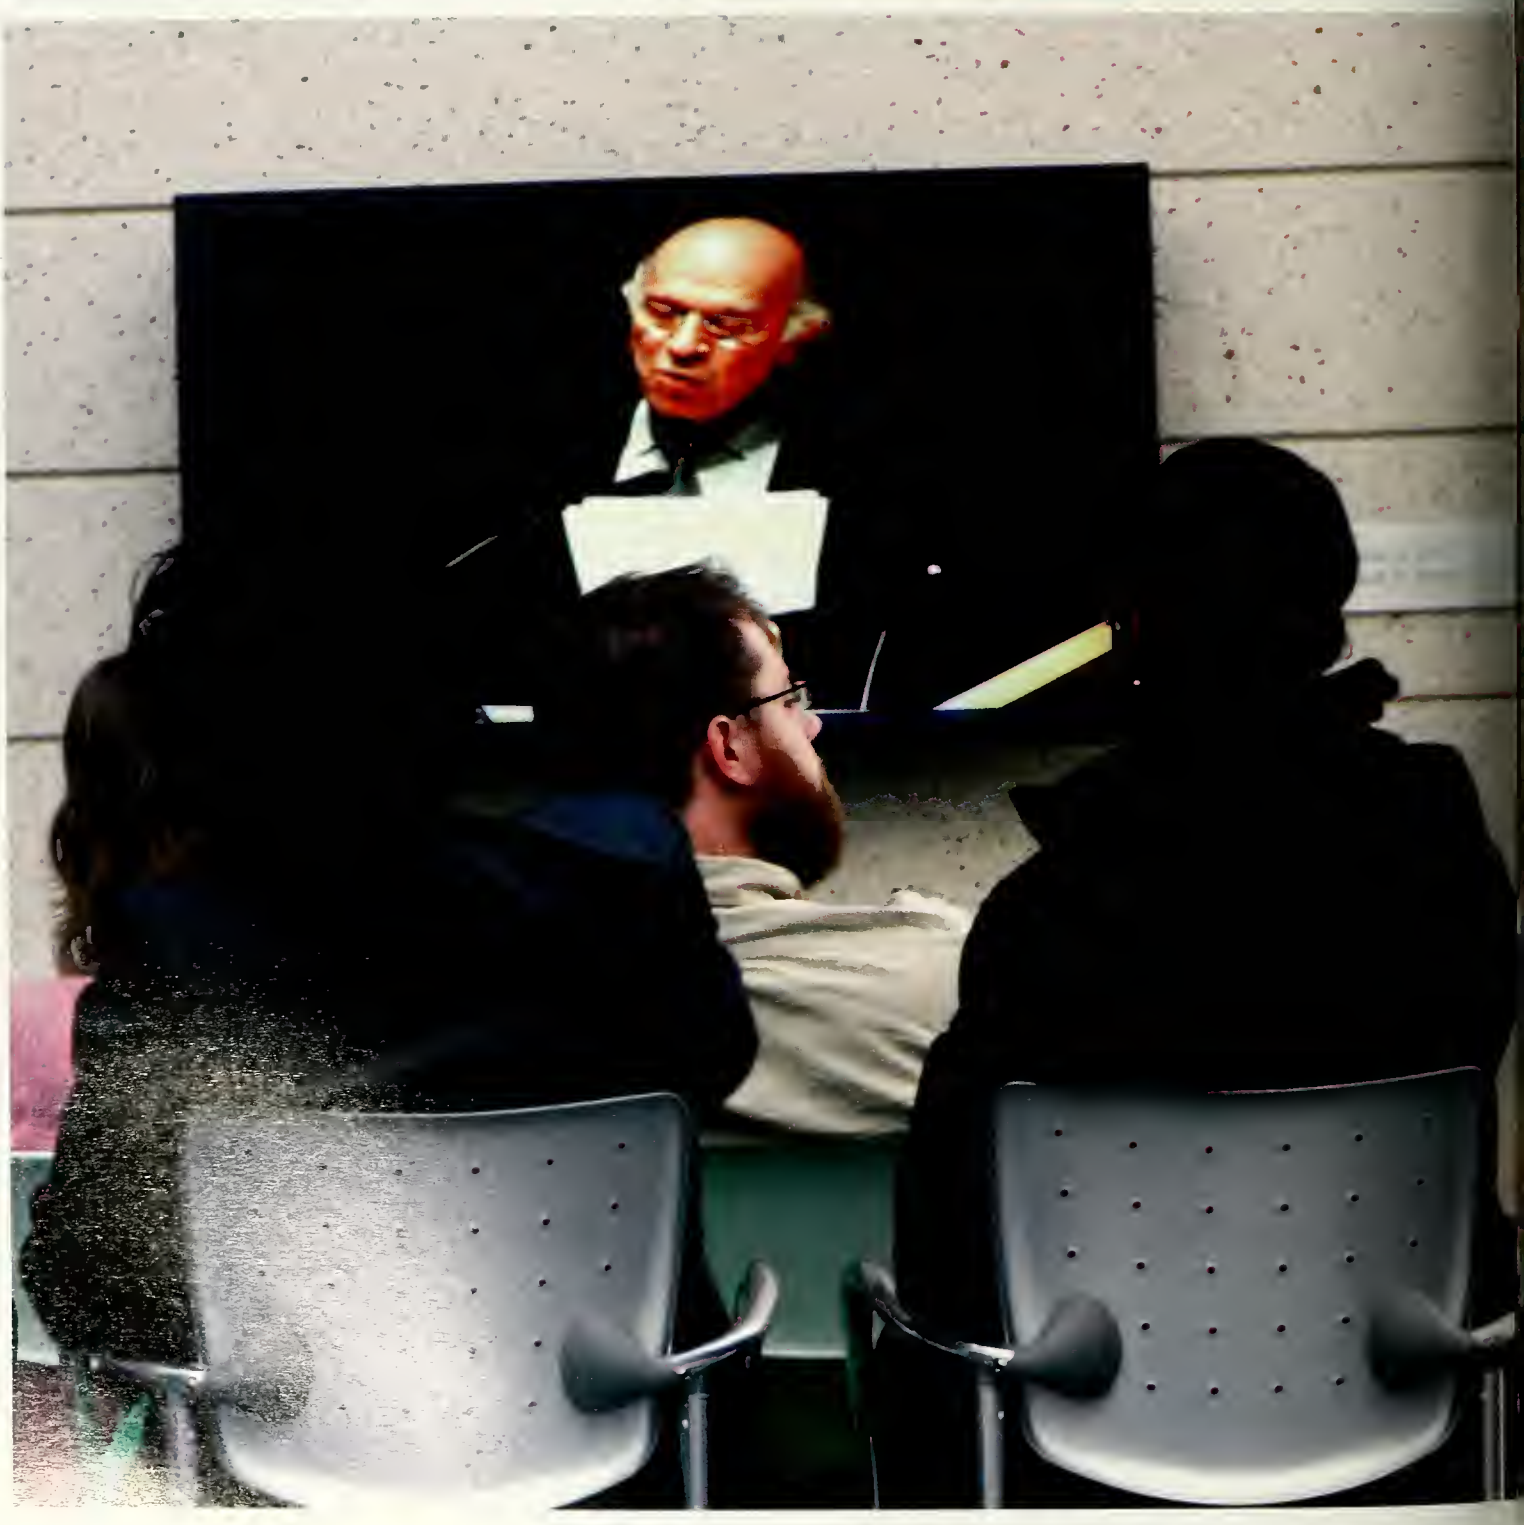




Stanley Cavell

Speaking in the new Nasher Museum of Art's auditorium, Dr. Stanley Cavell spoke on thinking about and eating non-human animals. Cavell is known for his pioneering philosophical ideas, as well as his literary criticism and cultural studies. Dr. Cavell discussed that most Americans take for granted the mass-production and consumption of animals, while other cultures do not partake in this practice. Dr. Cavell delivered this speech as the 2006 Kenan Distinguished Lecture in Ethics. So many attended the speech, that overflow seating was made available outside the auditorium.





The Pitchforks

The Pitchforks were the first a cappella group on the Duke campus and have been singing a cappella for over 25 years. Each fall, the group takes a weekend trip to Camden, South Carolina to their lake house. Tradition and strong friendships between members have helped the Pitchforks remain a top a cappella group on campus. Their new album, Bring it Back, will feature music covers of Otis Redding, Tenacious D, John Legend, Muse, the Goo Goo Dolls, Elton John and Guster.

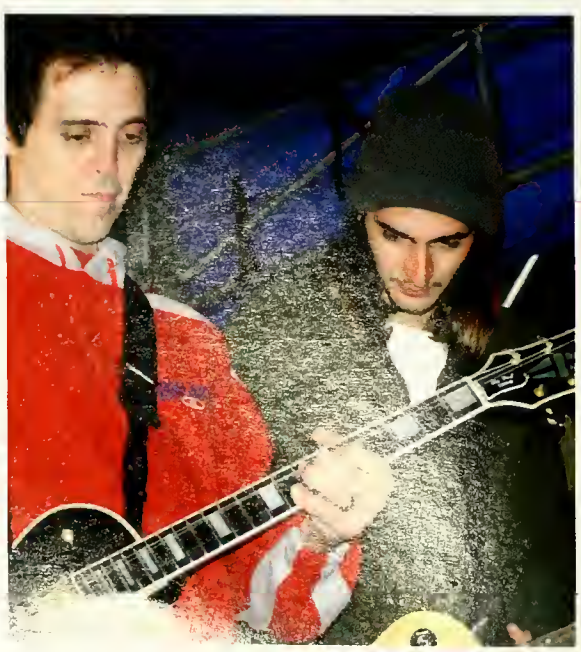
Once Upon A Mattress

Presented by Hoof 'n' Horn

The 1997 Broadway musical Once Upon A Mattress, was performed by Hoof 'n' Horn at the Forster Theater in October. The theater was packed every night with both students and parents during multiple parents' weekend performances. This crude and supposedly truthful version of a fairy tale classic, the Princess and the Pea, featured a promiscuous king, a domineering queen, a masculine princess and a cowardly prince. The humor of the play reached a climax when the cast revealed that not just a pea, but rather many bulky objects had been placed under the mattress to disturb the princesses's sleep, including ice skates.

Blessid Union of Souls

On a March evening [illegible] Blessid Union of Souls played to [illegible] at the West Edens Link. Sponsored by Operation Smile, the concert was a charity event to help raise money for their cause. Operation Smile is an international non-profit that provides reconstructive surgery for children born with facial deformities. The group received rubber wristbands to support both causes. Blessid Union played their hit "I Believe" "Standing at the Edge of the Earth," "I Wanna Be There" and "Light Your Eye."



Yale Russian Chorus

Presented by Duke Performances

One hundred vaices filled the chapel with a visit fram the Yale Russian Charus. Under the direction af the founding canductar, Duke Professar Denis Mickiewicz, the chorus performed Russian falk sangs and religiaus pieces. The Yale Russian Chorus was founded during the Cald War, when Russian music was little knawn in the United States. Over it lang histary, the Charus has traveled and performed in Landan, Paris, Berlin, Geneva, Madrid, Zurich, Luxemburg, Vienna and throughout the United States.

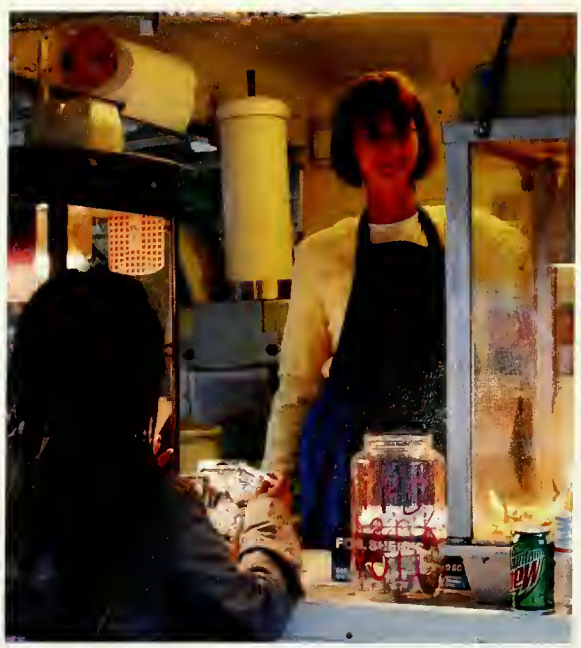
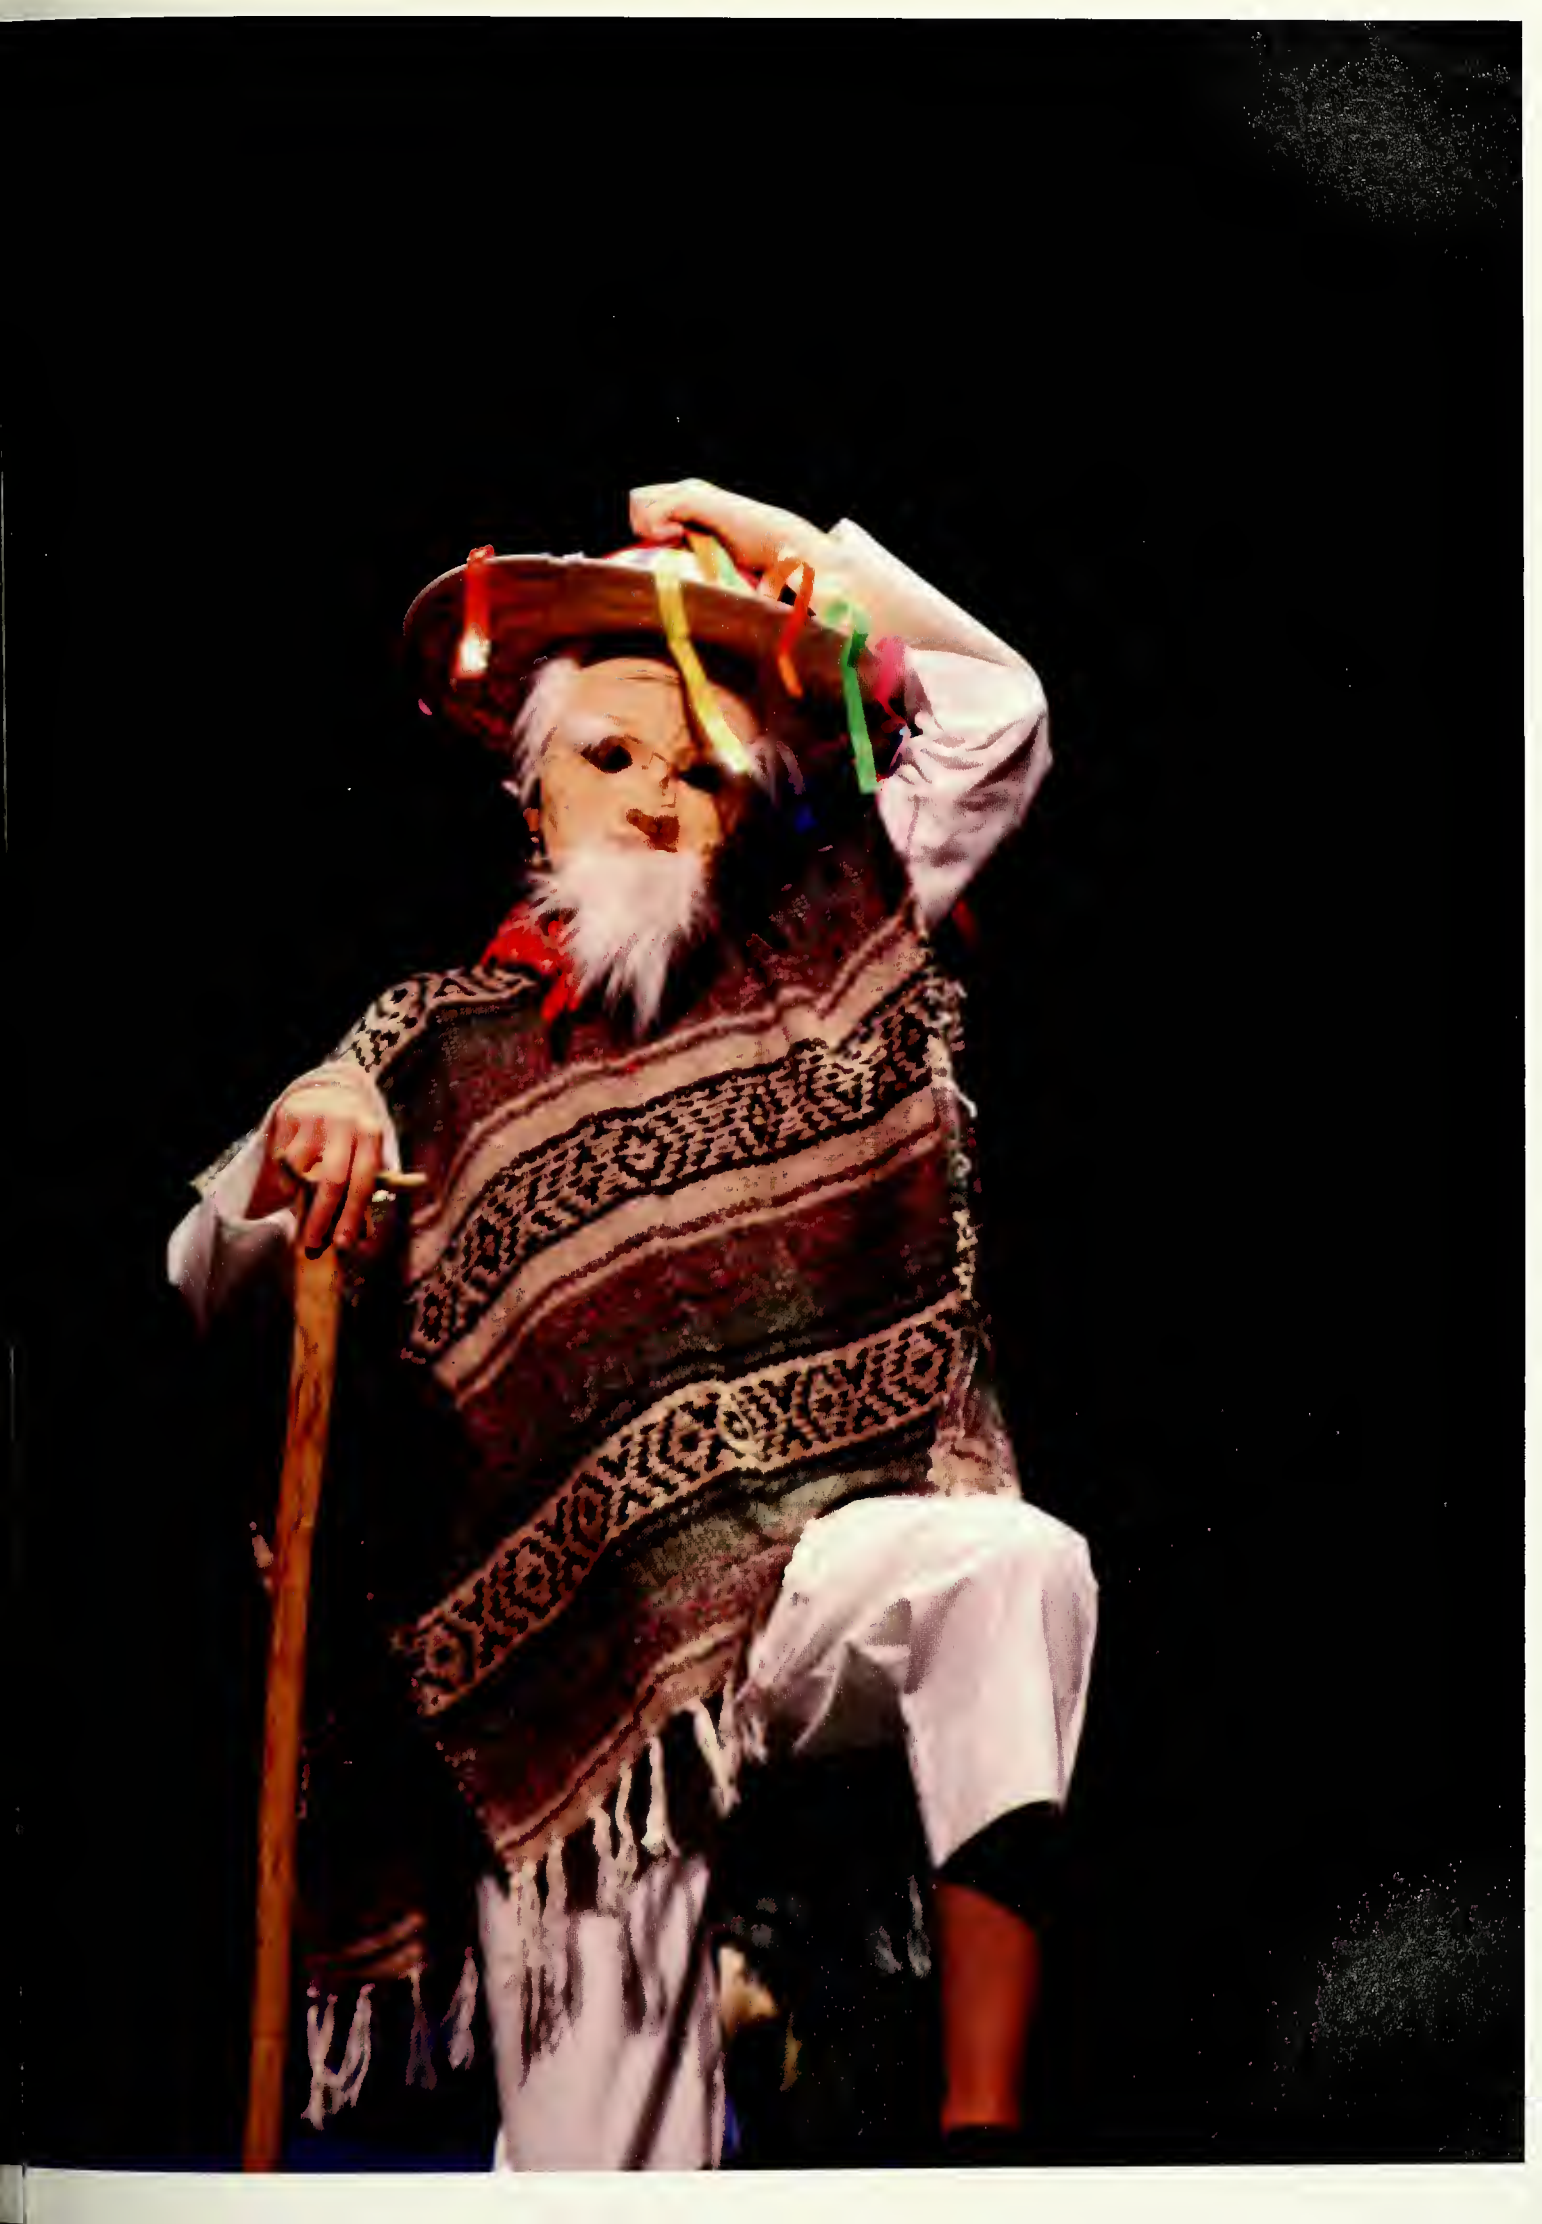
Student graups such as Out af the Blue, Speak of the Devil, Duke Dhamaka, Defining Mavement, Sabrasura, On Tap, Inside Jake, and Dance Black perfarmed an Main Quad during the afternoon and evening.



Mezcla

Presented by Mi Gente

The fourth annual Mezcla opened up with a piece by Lambda Upsilon Lambda Fraternity, Inc. "In Memory Of." It addressed the issues, challenges and struggles of the Latino community. The theme of the 2006 show "It's All in The Mix," brought many different types of talent to Page Auditorium. A modern and classic tango was performed by the Triangle Tango Organization, and Rho chapter brothers, along with visiting brothers, performed the act of Strolling, or party walking. To compliment the Mi Gente performers, there were guest pieces by Defining Movement, the Pitchforks and Sabrosura. After four years of hard work, Mezcla has established itself as a prominent cultural tradition on Duke's campus.



Big Show

Presented by Duke University [illegible]

The Big Show is DU's most [illegible] event of the year, raising [illegible] to the Scott Carter Foundation. Including [illegible] classic skits, the show featured guest appearances by members of the men's and women's basketball teams, including a skit with Lee Melchionni in which members of DUI played his family, pronouncing everything like the "Leeeeeee" cheer. Dean Sue Wasiolek also made an appearance in a parody of the TV show Deal or No Deal with exam grades instead of money.

Loyal Women

Presented by Department of Theater Studies Student Honors Project

Set in modern-day Ireland, this piece tells the story of an Irish woman trying to protect her family and maintain devoted to the Ulster Defense Associate, a Protestant group within Britain. Directed by Trinity senior Vanessa Rodriguez, Loyal Women showed the politics of how women live and their repression and suffering. Professor of Theater Studies, Joy O'Berski, coached the cast on their Irish accents.

On Tap

On Top has been performing rhythm tap since it was founded by undergraduates in 1999. In addition to performing on campus, the co-ed dance group has participated in events in Durham. Their style of tap dance emphasizes the sounds made by the dancers rather than visual effects. During the show, costumes ranged from simple t-shirts to suspenders. At the end of the show, younger members honored seniors with goodbye flowers. When they're not performing, On Top members might been seen wearing shorts with "Tap This" written on the back.

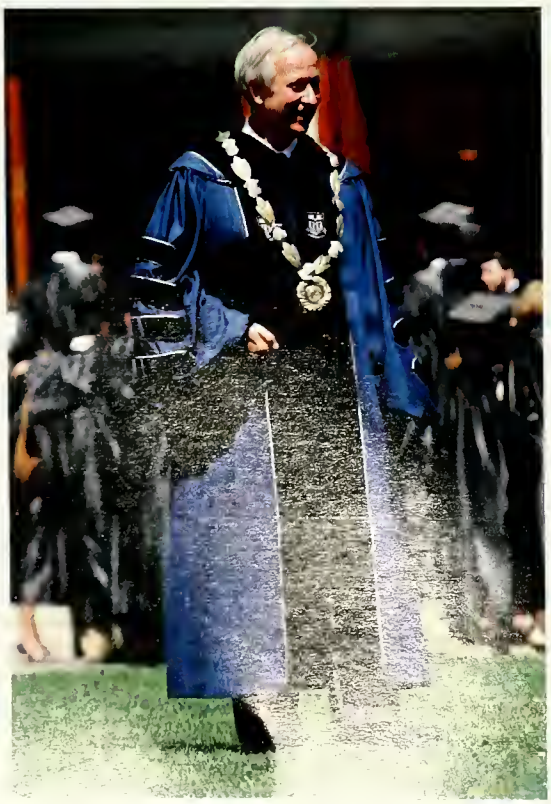
On the clear and sunny day of Sunday, May 14th, the graduation ceremony began in Wallace Wade Stadium with graduating senior Jackie Ou singing the natianal anthem. Student speoker Yazan Kopty, an internatianal student, spoke about his experiences abroad. James B. Duke Profes-sor Emeritus, John Hape Franklin, delivered a commencement speech that encouroged graduates to aim to cantribute to the community by remembering the importance of "putting other people first." He especially emphasized the need to improve the quality of education in the United States.



At the end of April, seniors were invited to a number of Senior Week activities to celebrate their last few days at Duke. Events included the Senior Olympics at Keohane Quad, drinks and food at James Joyce, a cocktail party at the Nasher Museum of Art, a senior class picnic with BBQ and karaoke at Cameron hosted by President and Mrs. Brodhead, a Dean's Reception for senior gift donors at the Sarah P. Duke Gardens, a pub crawl at Brightleaf Square, a networking reception with alumni from New York, and a late night party at Sympasium Cafe. The week culminated in the traditional sunset chapel climb, when seniors are allowed, for the first time, to walk up the stairs inside the chapel tower to see the spectacular view of Duke's campus.

Here about the beach I wander'd, nourishing a youth sublime
With the fairy tales of science, and the long result of Time;
When the centuries behind me like a fruitful land reposed;
When I clung to all the present for the promise that it closed:
When I dipt into the future far as human eye could see;
Saw the Vision of the world and all the wonder that would be.

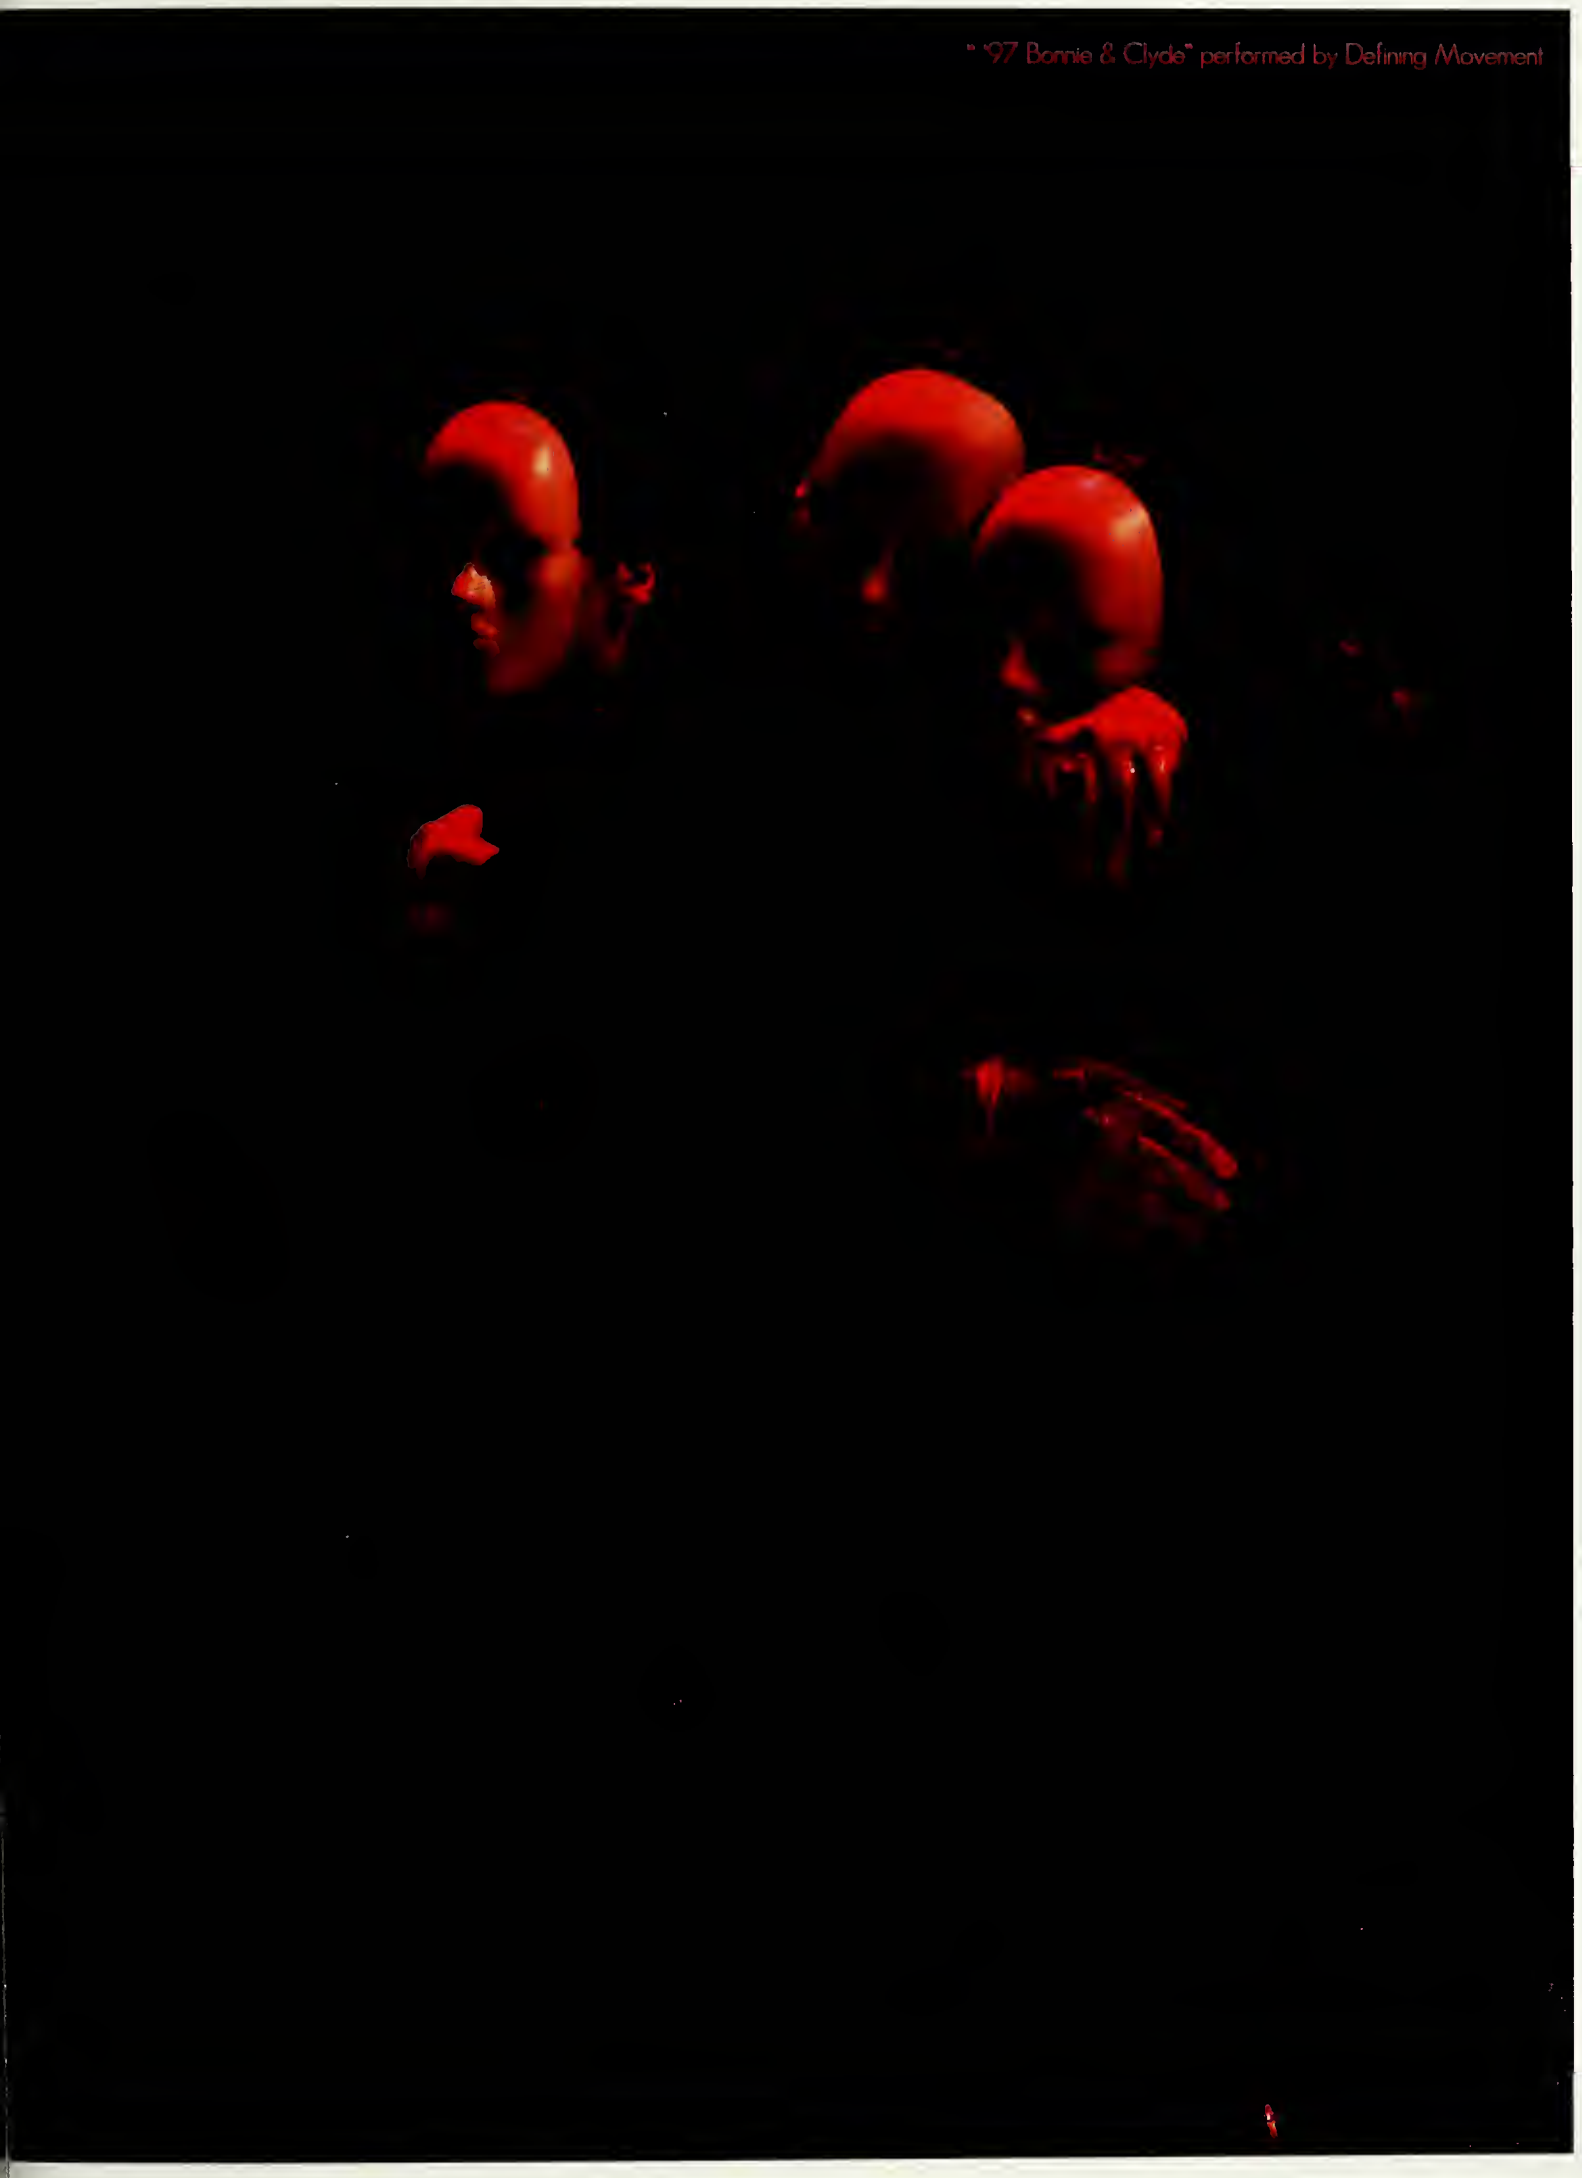
epilogue

"Color Blind" performed by DanceSlam



"'97 Bonnie & Clyde" performed by Defining Movement

In the fall and spring, the five miles of pathways that compose the Sarah P. Duke Gardens attract students looking for an afternoon outside of the dorm. There are peaceful niches for studying and reading in the original Terraces, the H.L. Blomquist Garden of Native Plants, and the Culberson Asiatic Arboretum.

lessons learned from yearbook

As in 50% of American marriages, commitment is fleeting and optional.

Deadlines are just loose suggestions.

Academic intelligence + common sense & social intelligence = hard work.

Cabin fever is real.

Seniors are perseverant. Formal policies don't apply to Dukies. They make their own rules.

Chinese food left out for 84 hours does not give off a nice arama.

Like romantic relationships at Duke, if they don't call you back and you haven't seen them in a couple weeks... it's over.

Mad Hatters takes 3 days to deliver your food.

Who says one person can't make a difference? Because it only takes about 5 to make a 336-page yearbook.

dedicated to Tyler Brown

(Dec. 11, 1983 - Oct. 10, 2005)

"A smile stretched across my face, now fully lit by the morning sun. Mother Earth protects her secrets well, and offers them up to only the most deserving. I know that if I can defy complacence and face the elements, I will be rewarded with life's greatest gifts."

- final paragraph of Tyler's Personal Essay for Duke
